

APATHETIC VOTERS NOW WARMING UP

Bolted Doors to Keep Crowd Out of Hall.

NEWARK GREETED FAIRBANKS

Cannon in Baltimore Tonight—Knox
Speaks—Root Utters Warning—
Bryan Answers Watson.

Political enthusiasm seems to increase with leaps and bounds as the end of the campaign approaches. In spite of the apathy which has been reported by campaigners of both parties from time to time, the voters are now waking up for the last two weeks of activity, and spellbinders are receiving more of the ovations which they have been accustomed to in previous campaigns.

A special instance of this happened in Newark, N. J., last night when Candidate Fairbanks was scheduled to address two meetings—one in the western district, where a good many of the fine homes of the city are located, and the other in the "iron-bound" district, east of the railroad, where a tenement population is reached.

Coming to the Auditorium, where the first meeting was to be held, the candidate had trouble in getting his carriage through the crowd. Some one in the party asked: "Why don't they open the doors and let the people in?" Every one else outside was asking the same question. It was answered only when the distinguished Hoosier was admitted through a side door and found the vast auditorium packed from pit to dome. The doors had been locked to keep the overflow out, in fear that a panic would result from overcrowding.

On Tariff and Money.

Candidate Fairbanks was given an ovation by the immense audience, which rose and cheered him, and Governor Murphy. Senator John Kean and other prominent Jerseyites were on the stage. The candidate spoke for nearly an hour on national subjects, treating especially the tariff and fiscal policies of the Government, and contrasting the results of Republican policies with experience of Democratic policies under Cleveland.

He then went out to the impatient shouters in the overflow meeting and spoke briefly to them. It was the first time that a national candidate had ever spoken in the "iron-bound" district. Senator Kean had kept the people interested while awaiting his colleague's appearance, so they were all in good humor to show their appreciation of the unprecedented honor conferred on them. After addressing the indoor meeting, the candidate spoke to 3,000 people waiting outside, and received a basket of flowers from a boy of little children, representing the thirteen original States.

Cannon in Maryland.

Baltimore is sprucing up today to give Speaker Cannon a reception which he speaks there tonight at the Lyric, after his all-day trip down the State from Cumberland. At the latter place he enthused a big crowd last night, speaking on the tariff especially. He referred to Parker, Hill, Gorman, and Tamm as "Tamm," "Quirk," "Gammmon," and "Snap," the characters in "Ten Thousand a Year." He referred to the opposition's program of advocating "protection in West Virginia and Maryland; anti-protection in Greater New York and in the South. The Seattle policy was to the Philippines to effect a reconciliation with Bryan and please the mugwumps when Bryan himself, by the aid of Democratic Senators in ratifying the treaty of peace with Spain, is responsible for our acquisition of the Philippines.

The Democrats of the Second and Fourth Maryland districts have planned an opposition rally at which Senator-elect Rayner and Congressional Candidates Talbot and Gill speak.

Knox Upholds President.

A meeting of importance from the standpoint of the prominent men reached, was held at the Union League Club in New York last night, when Senator Philander C. Knox and Elihu Root spoke to their fellow club members. The affair was termed a reception to Senator Knox, who confirmed his remarks to upholding the President for enforcement of the interstate commerce law and for his intervention in the anthracite coal strike.

The Senator first gave a recital of the facts in regard to the passage of the amendments to the Interstate Commerce act, telling of the President's part in obtaining such legislation, and then pressed home the assertion that the Democrats in the Senate had been advocating what the Republicans already had accomplished. What he had to say about the President's course called forth the heartiest applause.

In the same way Mr. Knox described the conditions which prevailed before the President intervened in the anthracite coal strike, telling of the appeals which had been made to the President to take action, which would have been in violation of the Constitution, and then brought out in a strong way what the

REPRESENTATIVE MUDD SPEAKS IN HYATTSVILLE

Revives Issues of Campaign and Appeal to Republican Voters to Re-elect Him to Congress.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Oct. 21.—The largest political meeting in the history of Hyattsville was held in Masonic Hall last night to hear Representative Sydney E. Mudd's plea for re-election by the people of the Fifth district. Music by the band relieved the tedium of waiting for the coming of the Roosevelt and Fairbanks League Marching Club, which, with banners, fires and drum, and lighted torches, arrived a few minutes after 8 o'clock and occupied the seats reserved in front.

Pledge Support.
Howard O. Emmons presided, and in introducing the speaker of the evening alluded to the divisions in the party last year, which, he said, now presented a firmly united front. A resolution offered by W. B. Severe pledging the active support of every Republican to both national and Congressional tickets was adopted.

As his announced voice at first showed the effects of his arduous campaign, but as he warmed up with his subject its hoarseness disappeared and he was distinctly heard by even those who were struggling for admittance into the densely packed hall.

As he announced in beginning, he dwelt but a short time on national issues, which, he said, might be grouped under four heads—the monetary system, the tariff, the trusts, and the Philippine question, which last included imperialism, Rooseveltism, and the Panama Canal, in concise, but clear and forcible terms, he defended the policy of his party, and of them.

The major part of his two hours' speech was a defense of his personal canvass. Carefully refraining from any expression calculated to arouse personal rancor, he contrasted the record he had made in the Legislature and in Congress with that of Dr. Hill, his opponent, during his single term in the Legislature. He said that former Attorney General John P. Poe, in defending the opinion held by the Democratic leaders of the Fairbanks League, declared that the intention of the Legislature was in the line of a great independence on the part of the voter. He accepted this declaration, and he put it to the Democrats of this district to consider, and to be guided by the words of their wisest and most trusted leader. If any number of Democrats believed that he, with his ten years' experience in Congress, and his success in procuring large appropriations for the district, could never more deliver to his constituents than Dr. Hill, he wanted their votes. If, on the other hand, any Republican or any number of Republicans believed that Dr. Hill could accomplish more in Congress for the upbuilding of the Fifth district than himself, he would frankly say to them, vote for Dr. Hill.

Not Responsible.

In the matter of John E. Bowles, the alleged embezzling assistant postmaster of Bladensburg, which has been declared against him in the canvass, he declared that he was responsible for the appointment of the postmaster, and not the assistant, and that the United States marshal, in arresting Bowles, had done him a favor which he had never been able to do for himself—that is, to keep Bowles out of his sight.

From first to last, Mr. Mudd had the large audience thoroughly with him, and his speech was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause.

President did to avert suffering to the public.

In a speech reflecting his full confidence that President Roosevelt will be elected by a great majority, ex-Secretary Root urged upon his hearers that no effort should be spared to bring out the full vote for the Republican ticket. Declaring that the only cloud in the sky is over-confidence, he said:

"Universal confidence tends to a relaxation of effort, and the more I contemplate the character of the Democratic party, its records, the consequences which would follow, by any intervention of events it should come into power, the more I feel the stake is so great that no effort should be spared, no matter how confident we feel to make a victory in the next election secure. Every vote counts. Every day and every man we meet affords opportunity to get more votes."

"The campaign is a campaign of very general misrepresentation. Issues are not being discussed. The Democratic party leaves all issues which might have been raised. They don't wish to discuss them or encourage them; they cannot."

Taking up the State issues, Mr. Root caused a little surprise by his frankness in saying:

"I think there is a serious question about the election of a governor. I think it is an outrage that so good a man as Lieutenant Governor Huggins should be subjected to the attacks that are made upon him. His nomination came to him unsought; he is no man's man. He is his own man. It is a very hard and very cruel thing that he should be borne down by unjust aspersions after the record that he has made after his honorable career, and the indisputable evidence of his fitness and strength, and I hope the members of the Union League Club will do their part toward preventing this injustice."

He is his own man. It is a very hard and very cruel thing that he should be borne down by unjust aspersions after the record that he has made after his honorable career, and the indisputable evidence of his fitness and strength, and I hope the members of the Union League Club will do their part toward preventing this injustice."

While Judge Parker's election does not promise all that Mr. Bryan would desire, it does promise several things of value. It promises relief from the race issue, and this will permit the Democrats of the South to turn their thoughts again to economic questions. It will also rid the country of imperialism and insure a return to the sacred doctrine of self-government, and it will notify the world that the nation has returned to its former ideal and will seek to influence other nations by example rather than by force."

TROLLEY CAR VICTIM IN SERIOUS CONDITION
The condition of J. Frank Larcombe is causing much anxiety to his family. Mr. Larcombe was one of the victims of the trolley wreck last Monday, and is at his home, 608 Albany Street.

His attending physicians found it necessary last evening to remove the nineteen stitches in his head in order to treat the wound. This operation caused a serious turn in the patient's condition.

Mr. Larcombe was much better last night, and the outlook for his recovery was particularly bright, but his condition today is serious.

M'CORMICK SEES SECRETARY HAY

Ambassador to Russia Calls at State Department.

CAME ON DEUTSCHLAND

Quite a Number of Other Diplomats
Were on Board the Same Vessel.

Ambassador McCormick, the American representative at St. Petersburg, arrived in Washington from New York this morning, and called on Secretary Hay and Assistant Secretary Adee at the State Department.

Mr. McCormick arrived in New York yesterday afternoon on the Hamburg-American liner, Deutschland.

Other persons prominent in the world of diplomacy who were on the same vessel are John B. Jackson, United States minister to Greece, Roumania, and Serbia; Robert M. Winthrop, secretary of the United States legation at Madrid; Mr. Grip, the Swedish minister to the United States; and Andre Bobroff, second secretary of the Russian embassy in this city.

Mr. McCormick left St. Petersburg two weeks ago and stopped in Berlin to confer about Japanese refugees, 300 of whom he collected in Russia and sent home.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED FOR J. FUSSELL COMPANY

A joint petition has been filed by the Purdy Ice Company, L. D. Rowzer & Son, and Miller-Clagett Company, asking that Jacob Fussell Company be declared a bankrupt. The petitioners say they are creditors of Jacob Fussell, the New York Avenue confectioner. On the motion of the creditors, R. Preston Shealey and William H. Wahly were appointed by Justice Anderson receivers to take charge of the estate of Jacob Fussell Company.

side, he is satisfied that a prima facie case has not been made out, and that he is therefore justified in entering a nolle prosequi.

"In every case in which he feels obliged to enter a nolle prosequi he shall make a special report to the Corporation Counsel, giving his reasons in detail for so doing, and the Corporation Counsel, shall from time to time report to the Commissioners on this subject, keeping a record in his office of all such cases."

"The Assistant Corporation Counsel on duty at the Police Court shall not fix collateral, or reduce collateral, security deposited at police stations or elsewhere, or perform any other function belonging to the court."

This order was framed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Sinclair, to whom Judge Scott referred when he said that the District Commissioners were not responsible, but a brother lawyer of Mr. Pugh, it is said to have aroused the ire of the Prosecuting Attorney.

DISLIKES SCOTT'S VIEWS ON STAR CHAMBER CASES

Assistant Corporation Counsel Sinclair
Said Not to Be Pleased With Caustic Comment.

The criticism by Judge Scott in the Police Court yesterday of the Commissioners' edict limiting the authority of the Prosecuting Attorney to nolle prosequi cases, was the subject of much comment about the District Building today.

During the absence of the Commissioners the subordinate officials are acting as champions for their side of the controversy, and the opinion is expressed that the criticism of the Police Court officials are unwarranted.

While Judge Scott's statement from the bench was not a direct attack on the Commissioners, it nevertheless was a criticism of an order enacted by them. It is held, however, that the criticism was misplaced, in view of the provisions of the order passed by the Commissioners on August 30 last. This order reads as follows:

"That the Assistant Corporation Counsel charged with the prosecution of cases in the Police Court be instructed through the Corporation Counsel to take into court, for its settlement, every case brought before him, except those in which, upon examination of the evidence submitted on behalf of the District, and without hearing the other
